Exercises Held Under Adverse Weather Conditions. Many Well-known Men Speak at Alumni Dinner Today. 119 in Graduating Class.

The baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Phillips academy was preached in the Stone Chapel last Sunday afternoon by Rev. Henry Sloane Coffin, D.D., of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church, New York City. Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, principal of the academy, conducted the services.

Preceding the service from 3.30 to 4.00 o'clock there were special preludes for the piano and organ, and violin and organ. The selections sung by the choir during the service were "Prayer of Thanksgiving" and the "Domine Salvam Fac" of Gounod and Stainer's, "I am Alpha and Omega."

The sermon, the subject of which was "The Friendship of Jesus" was as follows: "Two years ago next month I happened to be working in a Field Hospital at Chateau Thierry, shortly after our troops had gotten into that town, and as I lifted a wounded man putting him onto a cot and looking down to see a boy who had been brought up in the Sunday School of the church which I serve in New York City, after I attended to the other men, I came back and sat down beside him. We gave these wounded men one of three letters; G for those who had been gassed, in which case nothing to smoke was allowed; O, if to be operated on, in which case they were allowed nothing to eat; and E if they were to be sent down, or evacuated to a base hospital. This fellow had three machine gun bullet wounds in his leg, besides other injuries. So I sat down beside him and after doing what I could for him, asked him what was the most vivid impression made upon him by this war. He stopped for a few moments, then looked up and said, 'Well, I have been mighty lonely.' Then he went on to explain that they had been sent up to a bit of wood between two French towns, where the men were scattered among the trees, the Boche were sending over gas so that they were obliged to put on their gas masks, their own baggage helped to isolate them still more, and the guns were making such a din that they couldn't hear a command. Then this fellow had tumbled. 'I tell you, I was lonely,' he said, and then he looked up with that look on his face of a reserved person who feels that he must say something that is difficult to say, and made

LARGE CLASS LEAVES PUNCHARD

Class-day Exercises Held in School Hall For the First Time in Ten Years Because of Bad Weather. Program at Graduation of Unusual Merit.

The cold, wet weather of Wednesday made it necessary for the first time in ten years to hold the Punchard class day exercises in the school hall rather than on the Park. This was doubly unfortunate as not only was the lack of the usual beautiful setting keenly felt, but the seating facilities of the hall were entirely inadequate to accommodate the pupils of the school and the large gathering of their friends.

The undergraduates marched to their places occupying seats at the front of the hall, while the members of the graduating class were seated on the stage. The class of 1921 made an excellent appearance, all its members wearing arm-bands and the girls being uniformly attired in white skirts and middie blouses with black ties.

The address of welcome was given by Joseph Lovejoy, class president, who also introduced the various speakers.

The class historian, Herbert Otis, gave a very interesting account of the activities of his class during its school life at Punchard. His successes in athletics and public speaking contests were all recorded, as well as its social activities, the whole being a story of four busy, happy years.

The class statistics were given by Robert Partridge, the foibles, virtues and accomplishments of his thirty-two classmates as characterized by the speaker causing a good deal of amusement.

The treasure chest found on an island in the Shawheen near Ballard Vale provided a gift for each member of the class. Miss Ruth Cates was assisted in distributing them by a young sailor, little Malcolm McTernan.

The advice to undergraduates was given by Kenneth Coleman who according to his own account was well qualified by experience to tell them what not to do. He concluded by hoping that the undergraduates, when they became seniors would have the satisfaction of feeling that they had contributed something to the life and spirit of Punchard.

Joseph Clinton told what would be the fortune of each member of the class of 1920 ten years hence as it was revealed to him in a cloud of smoke while he lay at his ease in a canoe on the Shawheen.

Margaret Cronin read the class will by which the Seniors bequeathed to their schoolfellows with a mixture of fun and seriousness the familiar scenes, the characteristics and abilities both physical and mental of the graduating class.

The exercises closed with the singing of the class song written by Edith Sweeney.

PHILLIPS COMMENCEMENT

this statement, "At a time like that, what you learn as a kid comes back to you. It is a great thing to feel that I have a friend who sticks closer than a brother."

"Here you are in a period of your life when friendship means more than anything else to you, where the friendships of school days are perhaps your richest heritage, and where the friendships of college days are before you. What does it mean, this friendship of a friend who sticks closer than a brother? What does it mean to have this unseen friend?"

"The first thing is a sense of guidance. You and I are living in a very topsy-turvy world, but those who have been conscious of this unseen comrade have been certain that that is not the case, but that they are being led by one wiser than themselves."

"Within a few blocks of the church which I serve in New York City, there is a monument to Mr. Samuel F. B. Morse. I pass this monument frequently, and when I saw a copy of his life and letters in the library, I took it out and read it."

He was born near Boston, in the manse of a Congregational minister, a man who, on a very small salary, sent three boys in succession through Yale College. Samuel was graduated in the class of 1849. While there he considered becoming a portrait painter, a difficult ambition in those days. However, at a great sacrifice to his parents, and with great effort on his own part, he succeeded in getting enough money to go abroad for study, and was the first American painter whose portraits were exhibited in the Salon in Paris. He later returned to America, and when he was a man in middle life, a financial panic affected the country and nobody had any money to put into portraits. He did not know what he was to do, but he went to the New York University and asked if they could give him a position. They put him into the laboratory, and while conducting experiments there, he hit upon the discovery of the electric telephone. Years after, when he was nearly eighty years of age, he wrote a friend, "There was a time in my life when everything seemed black as night. I could not see why, with such sacrifice on the part of my parents, I had been allowed to attain efficiency in my chosen calling, only to find a stone wall built across my path, but," he said, "I had faith to believe that the doctrine was true, that God would make it plain to me, in his own time. He was leading my chosen path that I might divert me into his way, and would assign to me a trust which would be a blessing for all time to all mankind." What a thing it is to be able to look up believing that, if we do the thing which conscience tells us to do, we are following close to Him. He knows the way you take and you can't make serious blunders under his guidance."

"From this friend who sticks closer than a brother, comes a sense of adequacy for things given us to do. We are all thinking at this moment of those who have been, and will be nominated for the Presidency of the United States. Some of you have seen that play which has been on the boards in New York City, this winter, by Drinkwater, 'Abraham Lincoln,' and recall the scene of his nomination where Lincoln looks at the map on the wall and then goes and kneels down beside a table and seeks the strength that he needs for this task. Some of you may have committed to memory that speech Lincoln made when he bade good-bye to his fellow-townsmen of Springfield: 'I now go, not knowing when, or whether ever, I shall return, with a task before me greater than that which confronted Washington. Without the assistance of the Divine Being who attended him I cannot succeed; with his assistance I cannot fail. Trusting him to go with me and to remain with you, and to be ever where for good, I bid you an affectionate farewell.' Is there any-

"Over the doorway of a castle in Saxony there is an inscription. In the center is the word 'God,' over on this side the two words 'I will' and on that side the two words 'I can.' A man says, as Jesus in Gethsemane said, 'I will,' in answer to what seems to him his obligation, and the responsibility which God lays on him, and then with the consequent feeling of adequacy, 'I can.' Whether it be the studies of the curriculum to which we address ourselves; whether it be the duties laid upon us in school and college days; whether it be the larger tasks that await in later years; this is the attitude of the man who has that unseen presence, 'I will,' and then the consequent, 'I can.' It is as though God, in some mysterious way, reached down into our lives and enabled us to be whole men. How few men are units, while many are only fractions or decimal points! We say in our common phraseology, 'So and so is not all there.' That can be said of a great many more persons than we usually apply it to. Very few of us manage to be 'All there,' in the tasks of life. One reason for this is self-conceit. I have always thought there was a great deal in the colloquism that a man is 'Stuck on himself.' He is 'Stuck on himself,' glued to himself, going through life self-hindered. The thing that can help this is consciousness of Jesus Christ. A man is hindered not only by self-conceit, but also by one-sidedness. How often one says to himself, 'If he could only forget himself.' We read, 'Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth.' All of life's undertakings take two hands. With many of us one hand keeps tabs on the other hand. Some of us keep feeling our feelings to feel how the rest of our feelings feel. The greatest thing about the friendship of Jesus Christ is that we do not keep tabs on ourselves. We do not need to think of our own approval. We need only his appreciation."

"Jesus Christ also gives us a finer sense of obligation. A few years ago I happened to be sent to China upon an errand, and while there, I had a letter of introduction from Ex-President Taft to the then President of the Chinese Republic. He handed me over to one of his secretaries, a fine, scholarly old gentleman, who took me through the Forbidden City, and he opened up and began to talk. 'You know,' he said, 'as a man grows older, the books that interested him in his younger days no longer have that fascination for him, and I find myself turning to the books of the great thinkers of the world, like Buddha and Confucius. I often read the sayings of your Western Jesus.' There I interrupted him; 'But Jesus was not a Westerner. He belongs to all men, but is essentially of the East; he was born in the East and educated in the East.' Then he went on, 'What I wanted to say was this—I often ask myself, what is it that your Jesus manages to do for people that those others seem incapable of doing? He seems to me to have the power to create a more delicate conscience.'"

"Men going out from Andover today, what is there more to be desired than a delicate conscience? You know how we used to have to crank up our automobiles, but now they are all equipped with self-starters. There are a lot of consciences which need to be cranked, and the process has to be repeated time after time. What our world most needs is a self-starting conscience. If we had a more delicate conscience would there be any question of our country refusing to do its part in the world crisis? If we had a more delicate conscience in family relations would we have the broken homes, that are perhaps the greatest blot upon our American life today? If we had a more delicate conscience in our industrial situation, would it be so difficult to bring together our employers and employees, when each would be more concerned to help each other than to serve himself?"

"The friendship is not all on his side, for us. He appreciates the friendship that we give back. What longing there was in the upper room that night when He spoke to his disciples these words, which I read a few moments ago, 'Ye are my friends.' This little circle, these people whom he felt apart, these people whom he felt apart, He has been a friend unseen to every one of us here."

"It is said that when Grief had set to music those lines of Ibsen's, he invited Ibsen to come to his house, and, to his own accompaniment, sang Ibsen's song. When it was through he got up, walked across the room, and took Grief by the hand, and said just one word, 'Understood.'"

"At the end of the day when all life's schooling for you is over, when you have taken the trusts given you, and ended the tasks assigned you, will there be any better commendation than to have the Unseen Friend hold out his hand to you and say, 'Understood?'"

Choir Festival at Christ Church

A large audience filled Christ church last Friday evening when the combined choirs of Grace church, Lawrence, and Christ church, gave their annual festival of choir music. The voices were under the direction of Blanchard E. Ralph, organist, and choirmaster of Christ church, while Fred E. Jones who directs Grace church choir presided at the organ.

The choirs entered from the rear of the church, singing for a procession the favorite hymn, "O Mother Dear Jerusalem" and took their places in the choir stalls in the chancel. The program included three anthems by the combined choirs, "The Radiant Morn," "By Babylon's Wave" and "Awake Thou that Sleepest." The choir of Grace church sang "The King of Love" and "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand," the local choir sang "I Heard a Great Voice" and "He is Waiting Over Israel."

The soloists were Herbert Liversidge of Lawrence and Edward C. Holt of Andover.

The festival was entirely successful and very enjoyable. The evenly balanced and varied program made a splendid basis for the brightness and sweetness of tone which is characteristic of boys' voices. This product of the two choirmasters' work was most creditable. The sum of $85.83 was added to the choir fund.

The festival is to be repeated in Grace church, Lawrence, on Sunday night.

Death of Frederick A. June

Mr. June was for many years connected with the firm of E. R. Squibb and Son of New York.

Closing Exercises at Briggs-A'len School

The closing exercises of the Briggs-A'len school were held in the parish house of Christ church on Thursday morning beginning at 9:30 and a large gathering of parents and friends of the scholars were present to enjoy the exercises prepared for the occasion.

The program consisted of three plays, instrumental selections, a dance and songs by the school. "Children of Spring," one of the plays, has a local interest, having been written by Miss Edna Brown, librarian.

Mrs. Thaxter Eaton had charge of the exercises which opened with a piano and violin selection finely rendered by Elizabeth Reed and Susan B. Ripley. This was followed by a play in which the Junior classes took part. It was entitled "Going to the Circus" and each of the children performed very creditably.

Songs by the juniors were then rendered and the play "Echo" was presented by three pupils who took their parts in an exceptional manner and following this, Marjorie Knowlton delighted the audience with a very pretty dance.

The play, "Children of Spring" was given by the older pupils of the school and each one took her part well. The play was in costume which added to the charm of the performance.

Mrs. Amy E. Briggs, principal of the school then announced the prize winners for the year. These were as follows: spelling, 3d class, Guy Hayes; 3b class, Mary Richards and William Donovan; 5th class, Katherine Keany and Ruth Hayes; 6th class, Alvina Lyons and Edda Renouf; 8th class, Sylvia Vaughan; English, Frances Flagg; French, Edda Renouf; best descriptive essays, 6th class, Edda Renouf; 8th class, Sylvia Vaughan; writing, 3a class, Betty Baldwin; 5th and 6th classes, Marjorie Knowlton; 8th class, Sibel Kidder.

The ushers at the exercises were children of the school, William Donovan, William Rockwell and John Fuess. A few of the children were unable to be present, Betty Ingram on account of illness and Frances Flagg, Sylvia Vaughan, Alfred Kidder 2nd and Randolph Kidder being out of town for the summer.

South Church Picnic

At Pomp's pond on Saturday afternoon and evening there is planned a gathering of old and young of the South Parish for an outing day. The baskets will bring luncheons for the six o'clock refreshment. Games will be played and some canoes will be used. Wading in the water by the little ones will be indulged in while mothers sit on the sandy banks. Ice cream will be served as last year.

Coming as it does on Saturday afternoon, when the mills are closed, many more people can attend this family outing if the weather proves agreeable. If rain prevails at noon so as to make a picnic impossible, the church bell will ring "no picnic" at 1:30 o'clock. If all goes well, a barge will leave the square at 2:15 o'clock for the pond.

Hoopla! Circus Day Almost Here

The world's two most famous circuses

now merged into one are headed this way and will exhibit at Lowell, Friday, June 25th.

It would seem as though everybody in this locality were planning to attend.

The very name of the great new circus—

Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey

Combined—has been sufficient to arouse far more interest than has ever before been shown in the coming of any amusement enterprise. And word from the Ringling Brothers, who are the directors of this gigantic circus, is to the effect that those who attend the performances will witness the greatest program ever presented in America. This is likewise true of the mammoth street parade, which will take place showday morning, the mammoth menagerie and all else connected with this biggest of all amusement institutions.

The famous showmen have made a complete survey of both the great circuses and merged the finest and best of each into one. Hundreds upon hundreds of performers will appear in the gigantic tent. There will be scores upon scores of the cleverest dumb actors. A gorgeously costumed pageant of stupendous size will open the program.

Great companies of characters, representing the best-loved stories of fable and nursery lore will appear.

There will be splendid and many groups of beautiful horses in jeweled trappings.

The army of clowns exceed all past records for fun and numbers. All contribute to the biggest circus in history.

Mrs. Bertha Kimball of Osgood road has been quite sick but is reported as being much better.

Mrs. Abbie F. Johnson of Danvers visited her daughter Mrs. Herbert Lewis of Lowell street on Thursday.

Mr. Snow of Lawrence spent the week-end with his son, Fred A. Snow of Blanchard street, Osgood District.

Harold Abbott of Shawsheen road has returned from a week's vacation spent at Newfound Lake, Bristol, New Hampshire.

Kenneth Hardy is at home for the week. Mr. and Mrs. Hardy will return to Hamover with him on Saturday to attend Dartmouth Commencement.

The graduating class at Simmons College had the pleasure of hearing Rev. J. Edgar Park, formerly pastor of West church preach the baccalaureate sermon at Harvard church, Brookline, Sunday.

The funeral services of Carl Chandler, brother of Judge Fred N. Chandler, well known to West Parish people, were held at the West Parish Cemetery Chapel on Wednesday with burial in that cemetery.

The regular meeting of the Grange will be held Tuesday, June 22nd. It will be "Past Lecturers' Night," in charge of Ira B. Hill. This assures a good program for all remember Mr. Hill as lecturer.

West Parish and Osgood District were represented in Grammar School graduation by Priscilla Cutler, Louise Oozonian, Charles Mueller, Ardo Kasabian, Vera Kress, Milton Chambers, William Barron and Roger H. Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Cutler motored to Northampton on Saturday to bring Miss Dorothy home from Mt. Holyoke College. Miss Cutler is now at Hampton beach at a house party given by Miss Edith Marsden of Lawrence for her Mt. Holyoke friends.

Rev. Arthur Barber of Lawrence will preach in the West Parish church on Sunday. Those who heard him at the men's banquet early in the year will welcome this opportunity to hear him again. It is earnestly hoped that a large congregation will be present to hear the message he will surely bring.

The Home Economics Department of Essex Agricultural School closed on Wednesday. Graduation exercises will be held on Tuesday of Thanksgiving week. This is made necessary by the fact the boys who graduate do not finish the work necessary to complete their course until the harvest is in, in the fall.

The exercises at the unveiling of the memorial tablets for the Aggie boys who died in the service were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Hardy and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lewis. Eighty-one stars were on the flag and four made the supreme sacrifice.

Miss Sadie Kent of Lowell, who has been in the Lowell General hospital for four weeks with an infected foot, is reported as gaining slowly. She is not yet able to step on her foot, but the doctors say it is getting better.

The people of the village have responded very generously to the appeal for funds for the Fourth of July celebration and the plans for the affair are progressing very rapidly. The local boys are practicing diligently for a game which will be held between two picked teams in the morning and an interesting program for the water sports is being arranged. The Arlington band has been secured for the concert.

At the business meeting of the local Christian Endeavor society the following officers and committees were elected for the ensuing six months: President, Edwin C. The exercises for Children's Day at the Congregational church were very interesting. The pastor, Rev. Augustus H. Fuller gave a pleasing talk on "Consider the Lilies." Special music by the choir was rendered.

One of the interesting features of the services was the baptism by the pastor of Elizabeth May Doudy, Mildred Crosby Wood, John Wood Anderson, Margaret Scott Fleury, Norma Peatman. Following the ceremony of baptism, Rev.

Mr. Fuller, as is the custom, presented Bibles in the name of the church to Joseph Arthur Cummings and William Henry Juhlmann, they having reached the age of seven years and been previously baptized in the church.

Awards Made at Puncture

Gold "P's" were awarded Wednesday morning to members of the Puncture school who had won them by playing on some school team during the year. The presentation was very appropriately made by M. E. Guttererson, a member of the board of trustees and a loyal alumnus who has always taken an active interest in school athletics.

Those who received letters were Harry Payne, Albert Dimlich, William Dalton, Eric Chandler, Robert Partridge, Joseph Clinton, Kenneth Coleman, Geoffrey Nicoll, William Carter, Francis Daley, Everett Lawrence, Bernard Sullivan, James Dyer, Joseph Wright, Russell Carter, Thomas Stack, Walter Saunders, Norman Buchanan, Gladstone Chandler and George McGullom.

A fob was also presented to Coach Lovely who has been so successful in turning out strong teams. Mr. Lovely expressed his appreciation of the gift and spoke hopefully of the prospect for a good football team in the fall. Superintendent Sanborn congratulated those who had received the tangible recognition of their good work on the school teams.

Blue "P's" were awarded to Blanche Holmes, Jean McLeish, Frances Dalton and Grace Hess who for two successive years have made up the winning relay team at the triangular school meet held at the Lawrence Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Hamblin awarded certificates for proficiency in typewriting to those who had been able to write accurately forty words or more per minute. The successful contestants were: Arlene Miller, Ruth Cates, Marion White, Joseph Lovejoy, Esther Boutwell, Phoebe Noyes, Mary Robertson, Edith Sweeney and Honora Cronin. Miss Cronin who is the only Junior on the list, made a better record than any of the Seniors.

Last Meeting of Baptist Mission Circle

Summer smiled on the last meeting of the Ladies' Mission Circle of the Baptist church, held in the vestry on the evening of June 10. The room was made festive for the occasion with flowers from meadow, field and garden. Over thirty ladies, members and guests, were present, five being from the especially invited Home Department. Mrs. A.A. Super ably covered the program work on Turkey and Syria, touching their darkness with rays of hope and thanksgiving. All enjoyed the music; Miss Edith Dannels with Mrs. Harry Norcott at the piano, sang the beautiful solo, "Abide with Me."

The Republican Convention

No one who attended the Republican National Convention could fail to come away without many striking and interesting impressions. Republican conventions are always great events, and it was to be expected that the 1920 convention would surpass all others, but it was not expected by many people that its course would run in as many interesting and unusual lines as it did. The preliminaries leading up to the most interesting features of the convention were directly related to the candidacy of Governor Coolidge for the Presidency. Begun four months ago and stopping within a short time of its beginning, the campaign for Governor Coolidge's nomination developed more striking features than all the other activities combined. Events have proven that so far as the nomination for President is concerned, it was unfortunate that the Governor's campaign was not allowed to run its full course. This is said without any criticism of those who believed it wise to handle the situation as it was handled, but entirely in the light of events that followed. The convention situation proved that Governor Coolidge was as well known at the convention as any man in the United States. It proved even more conclusively that as far as real favor for the man and his deeds was concerned, he was better known than any other national citizen.

While Governor Coolidge's campaign was not allowed to take on the active phases associated with the work for General Wood and Governor Lowden, a group of enthusiastic and loyal personal friends had done a wonderful job in bringing to the favorable consideration of the country the Governor's qualifications. For the most part these men were graduates of Amherst and loyal college associates of the Governor. It is reported that approximately 100,000 copies of his striking book "Have Faith in Massachusetts" were circulated from one end of the country to the other, while even greater numbers of his single speeches, and abstracts from some of his more notable public utterances, had made the ground a fertile one to work in before the convention met. It had been a remarkable propaganda, educating the public to know well a remarkable man. Had this not been done, things could not have happened as they did at Chicago.

Massachusetts unfortunately entered the convention in its usual condition, with a divided delegation, and it is not surprising that many people in Chicago, and many more who read the impressions of newspaper writers, believe that to that condition may be laid the failure of Governor Coolidge to be named for the first place on the Republican ticket. The writer is not going to make that statement, but he is obliged to insist that there were several occasions when it appeared to be possible for such a result to come about, with the reason for failure as stated.

Results of the stirring propaganda by the Amherst men were readily seen by all those in the Massachusetts party upon arrival on Sunday. Twenty-four hours later it was equally evident that no proper ground work had been laid for bringing together the factors that had been aroused, and making them an effective force in the convention. Fortunately a hundred or more friends of the Governor were there to bring about a relief to this situation, and from Tuesday morning until Saturday morning, no man ever had more loyal, hearty, enthusiastic labor, inspired by a genuine love and interest, devoted to his advancement, than did Governor Coolidge, in the group of men who began the work of tying up the ends of the preliminary campaign.

One of the most effective features of the Governor's campaign was that provided by a gentleman who was very much interested. This gentleman prepared a handbook bound in seal grain leather, done almost at a moment's notice, carrying the salient points of some of the Governor's most striking utterances, prefaced by an appeal from the Massachusetts delegation to the delegates of other States, and having as a personal touch to make it an effective medium, the name of each delegate stamped in gold upon the cover. One of these was taken by personal messenger to every delegate in the convention, and presented as a card of introduction; they were heartily welcomed and at once afforded the opportunity for personal work that became most effective in establishing the right kind of relationship between the delegate who was willing to think, and study, and understand the character and personal qualifications of the candidate, and the men who were promoting that candidacy. It has been said that the nomination of the Vice-President on Saturday morning was one of the most spontaneous movements ever noted in a great convention. Certainly no one would deny that, and yet it cannot be overlooked that even though it was spontaneous it was the natural result of the right kind of relationship between the particular candidate who was chosen and the tireless work by personal friends of the Governor for many months, and tied through the activities of the men from Massachusetts during the early days of the convention. While the suggestion has been made that the nomination of the Governor by an Oregon man was also a matter of surprise, again this is hardly so, because it was the natural thing for that State which had declared for Henry Cabot Lodge as Vice-President, upon that gentleman's declaration to consider the proffer, to take the State's most distinguished citizen as a substitute. Thus it was that the delegate from Oregon presented Governor Coolidge's name, after the big chiefs had already told the convention through their spokesman, Senator McCormick of Illinois, that the man to be named was another distinguished Senator, Mr. Lenroot of Wisconsin.

The statement circulated since the convention adjournment, that the action by the Oregon delegate was due to influence of a Wood delegate from Massachusetts is the veriest nonsense, although one might well wish that it was true, if for no other reason than to show that same gentleman as exhibiting proper repentance for his attitude toward Governor Coolidge up to the time when Massachusetts was obliged to be united.

The convention was not a bosses' convention in any sense of the word, for the men who were termed had laid and directed certain phases of it. No delegate there failed to appreciate the fine qualities of Senator Lenroot or of Governor Allen of Kansas, but neither of these men held attractions for the great mass of those who were to name the Vice-President, and hardly had the delegate from Oregon taken his seat, when more than a score of hands were raised, with people demanding recognition that Governor Coolidge's name might be seconded. State followed State in hearty acclaim of the Massachusetts Governor as the one man who should join with Senator Harding in making the Republican appeal this year, and his nomination was accomplished almost before half the roll had been called. Of course the most marvelous thing of all this procedure was the fact that Massachusetts at this time did cast a solid vote.

Harding and Coolidge—the water wishes that every voter in the country could know the qualities of this splendid ticket as he has been able to discern them through acquaintance with the head of the ticket for several years, and through more intimate relationship with Governor Coolidge for many years. There is nothing of the "hurrah" atmosphere in either gentleman, but there are wearing qualities associated with both, and hence with the ticket, that make it, in the writer's opinion, the strongest national ticket nominated for many years with which to appeal for the support of voters of all classes. To Massachusetts comes a nomination for one of the two highest places in the gift of the people, after many years, and it is good to know that the attitude of the press of the country looks upon the Massachusetts man as the strong character on the ticket.

Side lights of the convention recall a great city, rather more wide open than ever, because it seems to have failed to appreciate the full significance of some of the recent laws that have called for more closing than ever of certain portions; more beautiful than ever perhaps because of the myriads of bright lights added to those already there by the swiftly passing automobiles; hotter than ever because the famous Lake breeze was waiting for nearly the entire time of the convention, but all in all one of the world's great and interesting big cities.

If Massachusetts failed to do some things just as some of us would have liked, all of us have great satisfaction in the effective and dignified way and because of those qualities exactly the way the Governor would have liked it in which the Governor's name was presented to the convention. There were no flights of oratory in Mr. Gillett's opening address, but a strong, calm, clear presentation of the reasons why Governor Coolidge should be the choice of the convention. Perhaps after all, the orator was furnished better by the seconder, who was said by Mr. Bryan to have made all the nominating speeches. Mrs. Pfeiffer was not only pleasingly attractive in the simple way in which she was gown, and the simple way in which she appeared; but her ability as a public speaker never carried greater weight with an audience than it did in her maiden effort as a political orator.

It was a great convention; great in its action and procedure, and greater in its result. The ticket has a balance, never surpassed in any National party ticket, and the nation may well rejoice that there is ahead of it a leadership, sane in its thinking, lofty in its ideals, clear visioned in its purpose, courageous in its action, all assured by the past service of Senator Harding and Governor Coolidge.

Weddings

TABER—WHITMAN

An unusually pretty church wedding took place at seven o'clock Wednesday evening at Christ church when Miss Edith Lee Whitman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David O. Whitman of Pine street was united in marriage to Sanford Walter Taber, son of Mrs. Sadie Taber of West Medford.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. E. Doughty, rector of the Episcopal church of Malden, assisted by Rev. C. W. Henry of Christ church, the double ring service being used.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, David O. Whitman, was becomingly attired in a gown of white satin cut en train. She wore a veil fringed with pearls and carried a bouquet of white orchids, white roses and lily of the valley. Miss Dorothy Lee Peabody of Everett, a cousin, was maid of honor. She was gowning in pale blue crepe meteor and carried pink sweet peas.

The bride was also attended by four bridesmaids: Miss Marjorie Parker of West Medford, a cousin of the groom, who wore yellow tulle; Miss Anne McGovern of Bradford in pale green tulle; Miss Katherine McGovern of Bradford in pale pink tulle and Miss Pearl Schlegel of Lawrence in pale blue tulle. They carried white shepherd's crooks and sweet peas tied with tulle in colors to match their gowns.

Barbara Peabody of Everett, a cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. Her dress was of white net and she carried a basket of pink roses. Willard Foster of West Medford acted as page.

The groom was attended by his brother, Charles W. Taber of West Medford.

The ushers were: Harold Lunt of Malden, Earl Woodman of West Somerville, J. Verity Smith of Rosindale, Chester Gray of Southboro, Gordon Whitman of Neponset and Guy Webster of Andover.

Miss Hoffman of Chillicothe, Ohio, officiated at the organ, playing the wedding march from Lohengrin and Medelssohn's wedding march, as well as several selections while the guests were assembling.

The gifts of the bride to the bridesmaids and flower girl were silver butterfly lockets; those of the groom to the ushers, combination cardcases and pocketbooks.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride and two hundred and fifty guests were present from New York, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Boston, Lawrence, Quincy, Dorchester, Swampscott, Stoneham, Wakefield and North Andover. A buffet lunch was served by Caterer Rhodes who also served lunch to the ushers, bridesmaids and intimate friends before the ceremony. The decorations at the house were by George D. Millett.

The bride who is well known here, has been employed as a stenographer for the George E. Warren company, Boston, and the groom is in the merchandise sales department of the Boston Post.

Mr. and Mrs. Taber are enjoying an extended wedding trip. After September first they will be at home to their friends at 13 Chandler road, West Medford.

SHAWSHOEN CELEBRATION

Fellow-townsmen of William M. Wood gather to hear congratulatory speeches. Band Concert and Bonfire Help to mark Occasion

The news that the indictment under the Lever act for profiteering brought against William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, had been quashed was celebrated in Shawshoan village last Friday evening by a band concert, speeches and a huge bonfire.

A large concourse of people assembled in the village square arriving on foot, by electric cars and automobiles to participate in the celebration.

From the flag-decorated grand stand erected just west of the new post office building, the American Woolen Company band gave a short concert. A banner with a picture of Mr. Wood surrounded by the words "A man without a stain upon his honor", made by an employee of the American Woolen Company, was displayed in a prominent place.

Among those seated on the platform with William M. Wood were Walter M. Lamont, Dr. Edward C. Conroy, Walter S. Donald, chairman of the board of selectmen, Selectmen Charles A. Bowman, Town Clerk George A. Higgins, Mayor William P. White of Lawrence, Representative James N. Robertson, Senator Frederick Butler, William C. Crowley, William A. Trow, Granville K. Cutler, Frank H. Hardy, Cornelius A. Wood, William M. Wood, Jr., George Wallace and Ignatius McNulty, secretary of the department of labor.

Dr. Conroy, chairman of the Andover School Board, presided. In a few words, President Wood thanked those present for their thought of him during the anxious days just past, for their loyalty, sympathy and friendship which he assured them meant a great deal to him.

Walter S. Donald, chairman of the Board of Selectmen said: "Fellow-townsmen, ladies and gentlemen: In behalf of the town of Andover, I welcome you to this beautiful part of this town. We are here to congratulate Mr. Wood on his vindication. They tried to drag his name in the dirt, but failed to do so. I am glad of that vindication and am sure that everyone else in Andover is."

Other speakers were Senator Frederick Butler, Ignatius McNulty, Representative J. W. Robertson and Mayor William P. White of Lawrence.

Mayor White after extolling the benefits which had accrued to Andover and Lawrence because of Mr. Wood, concluded with a request that no matter what other mills might do, that those of the American Woolen Company be kept open at least five days a week.

At the conclusion of the speaking and just as darkness began to fall, the bonfire on the park opposite the post office was lighted and the mounting flames soon illuminated the whole square.

Flag Day Exercises

Exercises appropriate to Flag Day, planned to stimulate patriotism in the piping times of peace as well as in the stress of war, were held by Gen. William F. Bartlett, Woman's Relief Corps in the town hall on Monday evening. The meeting was attended by members of the organization and their friends. Mrs. Agnes Parker, who was the principal speaker of the evening, expressed disappointment that more comrades of the Civil War and veterans of the World War were not present.

Those who were seated on the platform were: Mrs. F. S. Valentine, president of the local Woman's Relief Corps; Miss Charlotte Hill, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Agnes Parker, Department Counselor and Senior Aid; Selectmen Donald, Bowman and McFadden; J. H. Stewart of the Gen. William F. Bartlett Post 99, G. A. R.; Ira Buxton, Commander of Walter L. Raymond Camp S. of V.; and Paul G. Cheney, Commander of Post 8, American Legion.

After a few words of welcome, Mrs. Valentine read the Governor's proclamation. The meeting was then turned over to Miss Charlotte Hill, who had charge of the program consisting of songs and readings, a very pretty flag drill by sixteen girls and addresses by Mrs. Agnes Parker and Rev. E. H. Prescott.

Mrs. Parker said that our flag is what we make it, that not only does it afford protection to citizens of the country whose emblem it is, but that it represents a responsibility which should be assumed with clean hands, clean hearts and clean minds.

Mr. Prescott warned his hearers that the only guarantee of national life is that every one shall fulfill the call to service and transmit the ideals for which the red, white and blue of the flag stand into character.

The program was as follows:

Words of Welcome—Mrs. Frank S. Valentine
Flag Day Proclamation read by Mrs. Valentine

Class Song

Farewell dear old Punchard
From these we must part;
The fond memories of thee
Linger in each heart;
As we tread life's pathway
May we ever be,
True to Alma Mater,
Punchard, true to thee.

School days now are ended,
And how short they seem;
Visions of the future
Come as in a dream;
The road be thorny
And we oft may sigh,
Heavily laden with us
To our homes we sigh.

From five o'clock till nine a reception was tendered the Senior class by the Juniors. Dancing was enjoyed, music being furnished by Watson's orchestra.

Punchard Graduation

The cold, wet weather of Commencement season continued through Thursday and the graduation exercises of the Punchard High School were held Thursday evening in the Town hall during a heavy downpour of rain.

The essays which were written and delivered by the honor students of the class were good and the music which was of unusual excellence reflected great credit on the director, Miss Bettridge Tucker. No salutatory was given. Principal Hamblin announced that Miss Helena Wells to whom the part was assigned had been seriously ill being released from quarantine only within a few days.

The class gifts, a Bible and a check for the purchase of a picture were presented by Joseph Lovejoy, president of the Senior class and were accepted on behalf of the school by Harold Johnson, president of the Junior class.

Principal Hamblin awarded the prizes as follows:

Excellence in Freshman Latin; first prize, Catherine Stewart with an average of ninety-five percent; second prize, Gertrude Clark.
M. E. Guttererson Botany Prize; first prize, Mina Noyes; second prize, Viola Holland.

Parker Prize for excellence in scholarship and athletics, Albert Dimlich.

Rev. Charles W. Henry, chairman of the board of trustees, presented the diplomas. He commended the class motto, "He Conquers Who Labors." Mr. Henry said that all countries are in danger where there are not workers; that the safeguard of this country would be in right-living. If each member of the class of 1920 becomes a worker, his work will fall like good seed and spring up in a plentiful harvest over the whole world. He presented the diplomas with the wish that they might be received as a benediction to inspire them to labor and to conquer.

The program was as follows:

All who are interested in electric washers have learned that this machine is considered one of the best made. A gentleman whose name is Gainaday of the same type that I am showing every day in connection with his business line in Andover, noticed one in my window and came in to say this to me:

"I see you sell the Gainaday Washer and I want to tell you that I think it the best in the market as I have been using one constantly every day for over a year in my business and have found it entirely satisfactory."

If you are interested I will give you this gentleman's name that you may find out more particulars.

Class Prophecy

Last evening I lay back in my canoe idly drifting down the Shawshen river after a hard day's work. As the smoke rose from my 7-20-4 I could discern some strange figures entangled in it. I observed it closer and I could make out the words "The Class of 1920, Punchard High School in 1930." The words then drifted away and my former classmates were pictured to me as living in 1930.

Kenneth Coleman as usual, was the first to drift into view. He seems to be the owner of a large garage in Philadelphia. Kenneth's personality and line of talk have built up one of the best garages in Philly. Mary Robertson, another classmate of ours is Kenneth's private secretary.

Ralph Bigger is now president of a large fur company in Chicago. He is as good a man as one can find in the fur business. Ralph always would walk twenty miles to catch nothing but a skunk or a muskrat.

Esther Boutwell and Virginia Hess are conducting a tea room at Hampton beach. Virginia does the cooking while Esther serves the food and collects the money. As you know they both won fame as waitresses at the Punchard Lunch Room.

I seemed to see a ball game between Detroit and New York. The fans were not talking about Babe Ruth or Ty Cobb, but about Honus Dimlich.

Tender hearted Mildred Morse has been appointed a matron at the Boston Rescue League, a society which prevents cruelty to animals. People that have known Mildred for years realize that she is well fitted for the position for Mildred never could bear to see anyone pull the wings off a fly.

A fresh cloud of smoke and obscurity. Then as it slowly rose more of my old classmates appeared. I discovered Phoebe Noyes teaching at the Osgood School. I suspected while at school that Phoebe would be a teacher as she was the shining light in the English class of 1920.

Next appeared Harry Payne, now owner of the Andover Press. Evidently Harry paid strict attention to his work while working for Terry.

Mary Leary and Edna Woodhead are conducting a hair-dressing parlor in the Misgrove Building.

Helena Wells and Marion White are owners of a private business school in Providence, R. I. Helena teaches stenography while Marion explains the fine points of bookkeeping to large classes.

Rita Adams appeared to me as a dancing teacher at the November Club house. Rita is introducing all the latest jazz steps to a large class of apt pupils.

Ruth Cates is head bookkeeper at a Merrimac Mutual Fire Insurance Company's office. Ruth's trial balance always did come out right the first time.

Margaret Cronin, physical director of the Andover schools has already developed some of the weaker children into strong husky boys and girls.

I then discovered Maura Murphy. She is agent for a new alarm clock. Maura guarantees that it will wake anyone and have them at work on time. If this clock enables Maura to get to work on time the inventor should make a fortune for in all her four years at Punchard I scarcely ever knew Maura to be on time for the opening of school.

Arlene Miller has just arrived from Paris where she has been studying the latest styles. Arlene has the natives of Ballard Vale gazing at her beautiful gowns with eyes of envy. She will soon open an exclusive gown shop on Fifth Avenue, New York.

A cloud of dust! What was the cause I wondered? Why Lena Davis, the worlds champion walker just arrived in Andover after a little jaunt from Bangor, Maine. Lena gained her experience while attending Punchard for as you know the distance from West Andover to Punchard is slightly over 100 yards.

William Dalton is now in the catering business. Bill has followed this business since he was a boy and has always been recognized as "Mr. Rhodes' star waiter."

Louise Shiebler is president of the Boston-Lawrence Dispatch Express Company. I guess Louise paid attention to her commercial law lesson although she was forever talking.

Naturally her old class, Rita Stark followed Louise. She is supervisor of the Andover Telephone Exchange. Rita is well fitted for this position as no one has ever been credited with a decision over her in an argument.

Robert Partridge is teaching Spanish at Worcester Academy. He is also coaching the athletic teams of the school.

Edith Sweeney is a public stenographer with her office in the Bank Building.

I next saw Rose Spector. She is owner of a chain of fruit stores with her main office in Lawrence. I seemed to see her coming down Essex street in her Packard driven by her chauffeur.

Faintly through the smoke I saw a fast approaching automobile; a Pierce-Arrow driven by Joseph Lovejoy, president of our class, who has made his fortune from the soil.

Herbert Otis has established a collecting agency in Haverhill and seems to be doing well collecting other peoples bills. He gained his experience trying to collect our class dues.

Adelaide Dodge attended the Boston Conservatory of Music and is now playing the organ at the South Church.

Stodious Eric Chandler is now an architect with an office in Boston. He is now drawing the plans of a fifty-story building to be erected in Chelsea. This is a rather extraordinary problem but Eric has mastered some problems for Miss Fannie that would far surpass this one.

The smoke was getting thinner and I could barely distinguish the last figure that appeared. Who was it? Why it was Helen Farley the same as ever, last but not least. Helen is known everywhere as a successful interior decorator. If I recall correctly Helen spent about half of her time in the drawing room while at Punchard.

By this time my cigar had burned out. It had provided me with an evening of rare entertainment and it was with regret that I dropped it into the cold waters of the Shawshen and paddled back to Parker's Canoe House.

If Dame Fortune combines her forces with our class motto, "He Conquers Who Labors", I am sure that my vision of the Class of 1920 will come to pass.

JOSEPH A. CLINTON

The remaining Punchard essays will be published next week.

New Pastor Installed in North Andover

The installation of Rev. Elvin J. Prescott as pastor of the North Parish Unitarian church took place on Wednesday afternoon and interesting exercises were carried out with a quiet dignity befitting this old parish which dates its history from 1644. The church bell is one cast by Paul Revere.

Rev. W. S. Nichols of Montpelier, Vermont, a former pastor of the North Parish church, gave the charge to the people and Rev. Samuel C. Beane of Dorchester, also a former pastor, gave the charge to the minister. Other clergymen who took part in the exercises were Rev. F. W. Holden of Haverhill, Rev. Edward D. Johnson of Salem, Rev. Charles W. Casson of Roshindale, Rev. Alfred Manchester of Salem, Joseph S. Dummer of South Byfield and Rev. Dudley R. Ferrill of Lynn.

The members of the committee of arrangements were: Samuel D. Stevens, chairman; Mrs. Louis A. Holt and Mrs. Warren L. Stevens.

Sugar Truck Drops into Meadow

Tuesday afternoon a truck loaded with eight tons of sugar got out of control of an inexperienced driver who jumped to safety as it plunged down the incline leading up to the Wilmington bridge coming this way. Three tons of the sugar was salvaged undamaged right away. The rest was under guard until the next morning, when two more tons were saved. Three tons dissolved in the water of the little stream that runs through the meadow.—Reading Chronicle

For the Benefit of a French Orphan

Members of the Little Patriots' Band held an entertainment and sale on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Ruth Perry on Elm street, the proceeds from which will be devoted to the support of a French orphan. Unfortunately, show-ers prevented the affair from being held on the lawn as had been planned, but the program was carried out in the house before nearly 100 guests and the candy, ice cream and cake met with a financial success.

The entertainment consisted of the story of the club given by June Hinman, charades, a recitation by Priscilla Whittemore and several fancy dances by club members. These included Highland schottische by Ruth Hart and Lucy Sanborn; Fairy dance by Lucy Sanborn, June Hinman, Priscilla Whittemore and Ruth Perry; Lady Dainty dance by Mabel Darling and Lucy Sanborn; polka by Ruth Perry; Jump Jim Crow by Lucy Sanborn and Ruth Perry; the Virginia Reel by six girls in costume.

The members of the club are Mabel Darling, Katherine Farlow, Ruth Hart, June Hinman, Ruth Perry, Lucy Sanborn and Priscilla Whittemore.

Local War Veteran Graduates

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Golden of Pearson street attended the graduation exercises of their son, Michael J. Cohen at Montpelier High School, Montpelier, Vt., Wednesday evening.

Mr. Cohen is a World War veteran and served in France with the 55th Coast Artillery Corps and was severely wounded in action. He was invalided home and arrived here just before Christmas in 1918.

Resuming his studies at Montpelier High School he not only made up the two years he lost on account of his war service, but finished his course in one year of study. He expects to begin the study of law in September. His many local friends will be glad to hear of his success.

Overseas Veteran Returns

With the discharge of Private Charles Goldstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Goldstein, Park street, the last Andover overseas man has returned.

Private Goldstein enlisted from Pittsfield, where he was employed in October, 1917, and was sent to Fort Slocum. Later he went to Chickamauga and was attached to Company 3, M. G. B., Third Division. In June, 1918, he went overseas with the 175th Casuals and served in France, until the armistice was signed, after which he went with the Army of Occupation and was stationed at Coblenz for a number of months. He later went to Poland and did not return home until a week ago. Since his discharge he has gone back to his former work in Pittsfield.

Private Goldstein was born in South Lawrence, but moved to Andover when a small boy and has always made his home here.

Police Court Notes

On June 14th a cow owned by Fred Gould of the Reading road was struck by an automobile one of her hind legs being broken. The operator of the car did not report the accident, but the police have the registration number.

Edward J. Clane of 21 Lincoln street, Somerville, charged with speeding appeared before the court on June 16th and was fined $25.00.

Santa Cataldo charged with operating an automobile with no license was fined $25.00; on a charge of over-speeding his case was placed on file.

Children's Day at Baptist Church

Sunday morning Rev. F. H. Prescott gave a special illustrated sermon for the children on "The Heavenly Light as the Great Light." A large lighted candle represented Christ the light of the world, and numerous other smaller candles of various colors typified the races of the earth receiving light from the missionaries who were also represented by candles.

The Children's Day concert was held in the evening and the church was filled with worshippers. The service was in charge of Purley F. Gilbert, superintendent, assisted by Mrs. Colver, J. Stone, Mrs. Clare Norton and Miss Ethel Hutton. Special music was rendered by the choir under the direction of Robert P. DOING OUR PART

The Family Shoe Store's Stand Relative to High Shoe Prices

We have placed on sale our entire stock of Men's and Ladies' low shoes in black and brown leathers only, at a reduction of 20 per cent.

This is in no sense an attempt to lower the cost of living. There can be no permanent relief from high prices until production equals demand; and widespread price cutting to induce the purchase of additional merchandise will, in the face of present shortages, serve to force prices higher in the long run.

BUT—

The Family Shoe Store is now doing the greatest business it has ever known. It has watched the hectic efforts of merchants, in nearby towns, to stimulate business by drastic price slashing. We cannot sit idly by, while ill-advised business is being rolled up by other stores.

HENCE—

A flat reduction of 20 per cent. on all our Men's and Ladies' low leather shoes and Hosiery. Watch our windows and Don't Buy Shoes or Hosiery without First "Looking In" at "The Family Shoe Store."

REDUCTIONS of 20 PER CENT.

Grammar School Graduation

There were ninety grammar school scholars to receive diplomas at the exercises held yesterday afternoon. Seventy-eight of these were from the Stowe school; four from the West Center; three from the Bailey, three from the Osgood and two from the North School. Despite the rainy weather the Town hall was filled to overflowing with parents and friends.

Rev. Newman Matthews of the West church who was the speaker of the afternoon gave the young graduates a simple, direct address on the subject, "A Worthy Ambition." He enjoined his young hearers to become good citizens, to be public spirited and to cultivate an interest in the common good. To accomplish this purpose an education is necessary and in the speaker's opinion, a high school education should be the minimum.

There are two reasons why everyone should become a useful citizen. One is that we owe it to our country which has done and is doing so much for us, many of the blessings of this life coming to us through its protection and helpfulness.

Another reason is that the example of others who have wrought to make the world a better place to live in and through whose labors these blessings have come to us, inspire us to become patriots and support the authority and interests of our country for the common good.

The order of exercises was as follows:

Auto Race Comes to a Finish

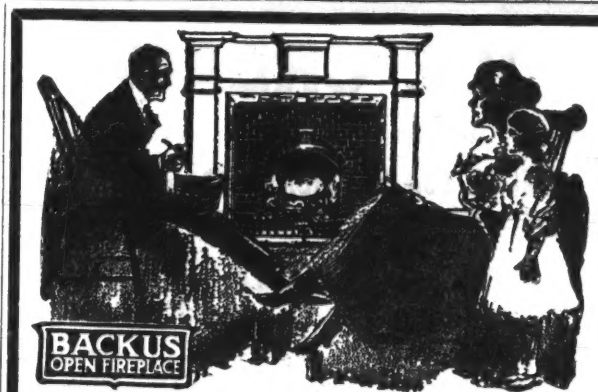

The auto race which has been participated in by the Sunday School classes at the Baptist church recently, came to a finish with the class of Clifford Dunnells as winners. The route was charted from San Francisco to New York, each class being assigned to a machine of standard make and mileage being credited for increased membership, increased attendance and increased collections.

Tuesday night the victors in the race were given a complimentary banquet followed by an entertainment. Supper was served in the vestry at 7.00 o'clock and the winners were guests at a special table gaily decorated with an abundance of cut flowers and with the others invited to share in the festivities. The following excellent repast was enjoyed: cold meats, salads, rolls, cocoa, strawberry shortcake and whipped cream.

Perley F. Gilbert, in a very happy speech, presented the winners with a "Ford" in token of their victory. Mr. Dunnells accepted the trophy in behalf of his team of winners who are: Gilbert Stone, Knowlton Stone, Walter Saunders, Clarence McIntyre, Winslow Dunnells, Oscar Shepherd, Royal Murphy, Frank Murphy, Walter Murphy, Everett Lawrence and Alonzo Mitchell. Remarks were made by William Caldwell after which the party adjourned to the church where an entertainment program was rendered which included a piano and violin duet by Malcolm Lundgren and Selden Billington, reading by P. F. Gilbert and Rev. E. H. Prescott and the singing of America by the gathering.

It was a very successful affair. The committee in charge comprised Norman Giffin, Miss Amy Lundgren, Miss Ethel M. Eaton, Mrs. Ellis Hudson, Jesse S. Billington, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Norton and Harry P. Norcott.

The auto presented to the class will be on exhibition in the window of Walter L. Morse's hardware store.

What a lot of argument there used to be about a woman driving an automobile TODAY she can "make a train" or fix a tire as well as anybody.

As soon as a luxury becomes a necessity the point of view changes.

II

Two or three years ago you would have listened to more varying opinions about tires than you could shake a stick at. Mileages, construction, treads and whatnot.

It's different now. Tire users are working towards a unanimous feeling.

You express it one way—the man down the street another. But sifted down it amounts to this:

That the only way to settle your tire problem is to get a tire of known value and stick to it.

III

We recommend and sell U. S. Tires because their value is known.

There's no guess about it.

It was the U. S. quality policy which led to the perfection of the straight-side automobile tire, the pneumatic truck tire—two of the greatest additions to tire value that have ever been made.

As representatives of the oldest and largest rubber concern in the world, we are in a position to tell you something about tire values. Come in some day and talk to us.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:

Washington Letter

Washington D. C.—The Federal Trade Commission has given out the present week its report on the meat-packing industry and by reason of the vast amount of political matters under discussion it may have escaped the notice it well deserves. It refers to the profits of the packers. At this time when the living costs are high and still going up this report is of more than the usual weight as to government reports in general. So many of them are treated as only pages of figures and that is all, but here is a report that tells its own story.

Whether it will prove a popular best seller remains to be seen but at all events it will be widely read and read widely for facts in the case.

The figures of sales and all that regards the packers in general are found at all times in the papers and stock reports. But here is a report of figures that is official and so can be regarded as absolutely true as to all facts as well as figures. There are five great packers as the Government says: Swift, Armour, Wilson, Morris and Cudahy. Then there are 65 independent packing concerns considered for the years 1911, 1915, and 1916. Now it is a strange fact in some ways that for the fiscal year 1918—a year year both here and in Europe there were 117 independent packers examined by the Federal Trade Commission. That phase of the subject may give some light as to why all the money made during the war was not confined to the five great packers and to other lines of manufacture.

It may be well for the reader to ponder over a few facts as to money made. This will prove interesting when the next increase in bacon or beef is in effect. In 25 years since 1895 Swift & Co. report earnings of $21,129,000 cash dividends of $8,157,000 and extra dividends of $25,000,000 declared in 1917. During this same period $86,233,000 of new stock for cash was sold. The Amours for 50 years through 1918 reported earnings of $179,270,000 and in dividends $29,866,000. The reports say: "Armour & Co. presents one of the most remarkable instances of financial development in American industrial history. About 8 per cent of the present net worth of the company has come from cash or property contributions on the part of the stockholders."

The war profits of the five great packers are well worth looking at as the money made stands out as huge indeed. The net profits in the three previous years—1912, 1913, 1914—amounted to $39,510,000. The net profits in the three war years 1915, 1916, 1917, amounted to $192,200,000. This is an increase of $152,700,000 or 223 per cent. The figures were not reported by the several companies concerned but were found to be facts by the investigators. The fact stands out that the effect of the war on the profits of the great packers was so far as profits were concerned was to increase net earnings at least $152,700,000 more in the prior years. The term "net profit" means after deducting interest paid as an expense. If investment be defined as net worth capital stock and surplus the five packers have earned from 8.1 per cent in 1912 to 12.8 per cent in 1915, 18 per cent in 1916 and 26.5 per cent in 1917.

The reports say this remarkable fact: "In respect to the profits of the five great companies, one outstanding conclusion which the Commission has reached is the meagerness of costs and profits hitherto recorded and reported by the several companies, due to the failure to follow certain well-recognized and fundamental principles of accounting."

This week there have been distributed in various parts of the country 10,000 retirement blanks. These are the blanks on which application may be made for retirement. The Bureau of Pensions is handling this work and the delivery of the blanks is made under its regulations. It is stated that not more than 1000 will be eligible for retirement this year. It will be a wise act on the part of any clerk here or elsewhere to write to the Pension office now and ask about the new law. It is not as some persons believe a pension law for Government clerks employed only in Washington. It is for clerks in all sections of the country. The age limit is 70 but a clerk may continue beyond the age limit provided his efficiency is properly certified.

Harding and Goodhue go off first. Now let Frisco keep up with the good work.

Governor Goodhue has made one visit to Washington. This was but a few years ago and when he was serving as lieutenant governor of Massachusetts.

There is talk today that Governor Cox of Ohio may be named by the Democrats as against Senator Harding and Senator Walsh of Massachusetts is spoken of as the man to run against Governor Goodhue. But won't those two states swell up though.

Hot and humid here. Rumors are not true that Mr. Wilson is to call the Congress back for reasons as to the weather.

Obituary

ISABELL TAYLOR MURRAY
July 31, 1841—May 27, 1920

Word has just reached Andover friends of the passing of Isabel, the widow of the late James B. Murray of Cincinnati, Ohio, after a long illness. Many of her old associates here have entered into rest. The home in which as an orphan, she was tenderly cared for as a daughter, that of her aunt, the late Mrs. Almon Clark, has long missed the cheer she learned so well to dispense when she came to have a home of her own here with us. James Murray and his wife were raised from childhood together in our Ballard Vale, and were from the start well mated. She combined a business energy with a rare taste in millinery and we know her when she, with her cousin, Miss Lucia Clark, started in together at the shop Mrs. Walton had started and which Miss Neal continued so successfully later and which is still headquarters for a prompt attention to our wants. The war spared Mr. Murray to establish his musical career, in which she was his constant adviser, as he never submitted a work to the press without her backing. We still recall her home so beautiful, her hospitality, the grief over the loss of the little babes and the survival of the last, who still carries this name honored here. Winthrop Root Murray who perhaps will make his home with his uncle Robert Murray in Cleveland. All the long years of experience come suddenly to the front when we read the note so hastily sent from the West. What more is to come of her burial and final place of rest may be learned later. Most of her age are gone now, but while one is left her influence remains, for she was a loyal friend and to the last letter sent at Christmas, Andover was welcome. I had her birthday card ready for her with several others but just as years. Places change, but hearts grow stronger that bind us to the good word of real things.
